Description
Provide a short description of the event and its activities.
The third workshop had a smaller attendance of participants than expected. Although 15 young people registered for the workshop, at the end only 6 attended the event. All the participants were students from the University of Malaga, from different Bachelor's Degrees: Advertising, Tourism,

Social and Communication Sciences, and Political Sciences.

All the workshop planned activities were carried out anyway. However, the small number of participants forced the duration of the workshop to be reduced lightly, since not as much time was needed for the activities as in bigger groups. Likewise, the exercises and dynamics were mainly carried out individually, in order to obtain broader information.

On the positive side, the smaller number of participants allowed a deeper and more extensive debate, and the sharing of opinions and proposals was possible in a more relaxed way and with more time for each participant to share its view. The main topics that raised debate among the participants were:

1. EU: what it is, how it works, what implications does being a member have, and above all, what benefits does it bring to young people.
2. The reasons that lead young people not to vote in the European elections, with the majority agreeing that it is due to a lack of information about the process and the candidates.
3. Possible strategies to capture the attention of young people and mobilize them to participate, prioritizing the use of social networks with simple, brief and impactful messages.

Despite the small number of participants, the debates and results were highly interesting and deep, especially considering that two of the students recently had a study visit to the European Parliament and had more knowledge on the subject, which raised more topics to discuss and analyze.
